MIAMI STREETLAW

By Miami STREETLAW Director Karen Throckmorton

KNOWLEDGE OF THE LAW CAN BE LIFE-CHANGING.

The truth is, every student learns how to be an attorney in their community each week at law school while learning about the law. But the reality is, that's not enough. Miami STREETLAW is a unique program that was created to provide that extra bit of knowledge to those who need it the most.

In its first year, the program has been a huge success, with more than 200 students participating in various events. The program has been able to reach a diverse group of students, including those who are incarcerated, homeless, and others who may not have had access to legal services.

One of the most rewarding experiences is watching the students transform their understanding of the law as they apply it to real-life situations. It's truly inspiring to see how much the students learn and how they want to continue learning.

For some students, the program has provided them with the confidence to pursue careers in law, while others have gained valuable skills that they can use in their daily lives. The program has also helped to build relationships between the students and the community, creating a sense of belonging and purpose.

In conclusion, Miami STREETLAW is an incredible program that is making a real difference in people's lives. It's a testament to the power of education and the impact it can have on society. Thank you to everyone who has been a part of this incredible journey so far, and we look forward to seeing what the future holds for Miami STREETLAW.
By Aziza Naa-Kaa Botchway

The historic Black Church Project originated in 2009, in response to the hunger and food insecurity crisis existing in Miami-Dade County. Black Church Project partners, working in collaboration with the local churches, St. Albans Childcare Center, and other local organizations, seek to alleviate hunger on the local level, through active solicitation of non-perishable food items, which are distributed to local households who may be eligible for benefits through the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). Fellow Kim Salamone assisted with a presentation at Beulah Missionary Baptist Church, which resulted in the church contacting a SNAP provider to sign up for the program.

At the Oral History Project, Fellows have worked to develop a comprehensive oral history narrative that will document the history of the churches and the impact of the historic Black Church Project on the community. This project has included conducting oral history interviews with local leaders and community members, as well as conducting research on the history of the churches and the impact of the project on the community. Fellows have worked with legal counsel to develop legal strategies and litigation strategies to effectuate that goal.

Of the 260 Black churches that were once part of the Black Church Project, approximately 40% are still functioning today. The project has made a significant impact on the community by providing much-needed food assistance and housing assistance to those in need. Fellows have also worked to expand the project’s reach by partnering with local organizations to extend the project’s impact to other communities in need.

The project continues to grow and evolve, with Fellows working to develop new partnerships and strategies to further the project’s goals. The project is an example of the power of collaboration and community engagement in making a positive impact on the lives of those in need.

By Fellows Daniel Glass and Purvi Shah, Fellows Michael Chertok, Tiffany Curry, Tony Guo, and Jason Young have been working alongside Ransom Everglades School’s Oral History Project and the Miami-Dade Office of Intergovernmental Affairs to create a comprehensive oral history narrative that will document the history of the churches and the impact of the project on the community. This project has included conducting oral history interviews with local leaders and community members, as well as conducting research on the history of the churches and the impact of the project on the community. Fellows have worked with legal counsel to develop legal strategies and litigation strategies to effectuate that goal.

The project continues to grow and evolve, with Fellows working to develop new partnerships and strategies to further the project’s goals. The project is an example of the power of collaboration and community engagement in making a positive impact on the lives of those in need.