Dr. Joseph Chamie
Director of Research, Center for Migration Studies and Editor, International Migration Review

Joseph Chamie is Director of Research at the Center for Migration Studies, New York and Editor of the International Migration Review. Formerly, he was the Director of the United Nations Population Division. In addition to completing numerous studies issued under United Nations authorship, he has also written studies in his own name in such areas as fertility, estimates and projections, population aging, international migration, and population and development policy.