

Student Social Media Policy

Upon acceptance to the University of Miami School of Law, admitted students are added to their respective class Facebook pages and email distribution lists. The purpose of these platforms is to promote law school and university-related events and to distribute useful information to current students. Students should only use these platforms to ask questions or make comments related to University and law school issues. These official media should not be used to promote particular commercial products (including bar review courses), political causes, personal fundraising efforts, or other matters that are not of general interest to the law school community. The administration reserves the right to request that emails or posts that violate this policy be removed. We appreciate your cooperation with this policy and encourage you to address any questions or concerns with Janet Stearns, Dean of Students, or Emily Horowitz, Assistant Director of Academic Affairs & Student Services.
